
OPEN LETTER TO JADARA REVIEWERS

Dear JADARA Reviewers:

We would like to restate to the reviewers of JADARA some of the changes that will be made over the next few months. As those of you who have been reviewers for some time might recall, when we took over as editors, we sent out letters of interest to all reviewers asking if they wished to continue serving the JADARA. Those who responded were kept on as reviewers and those who chose not to respond were removed from the list. Since that time we have decided, with board approval, to make the JADARA reviewer position, along with that of editor, time-limited. Letters were sent out, based on current address information from ADARA, to all current reviewers stating this change and again asking for those who remained interested to contact us. We also placed a similar letter in a previous issue of JADARA.

While we certainly have no interest in removing any current reviewer still interested in serving the JADARA, we do need to move forward by adding new reviewers and crystallizing our reviewers list. This letter to the reviewers in this current issue of JADARA is being offered as an opportunity for any current reviewer who has not received his or her letter, or contacted us, to do so as soon as possible to let us know that you desire to continue to serve as a reviewer. To make room for the new reviewers and to facilitate better communication between reviewer and editor, those who do not respond will be removed from the current list.

Please contact us as soon as possible, if you have not already done so, to let us know if you wish to remain as a reviewer for the JADARA. Our contact information is on page 70 of this issue.

Thank you for your time and contribution to the JADARA.

Sincerely,

David M. Feldman, Ph.D.
Co-editor, JADARA
