

Study Deafness Rehabilitation in London This Summer

Graduate Study Abroad Program in Deafness Rehabilitation Leading to the M.A., Ed.D., or Ph.D. Degree/July-August 1985—8 weeks.

This program is designed to provide educators, rehabilitation personnel, audiologists, and speech pathologists an opportunity to study educational theories, techniques, and new approaches now being used in England to meet the educational and rehabilitation needs of deaf persons, especially the multiply disabled.

Classes, with world-renowned leaders in the deafness field as instructors, are coordinated with conferences, research, and visits to clinics, schools, and other relevant educational settings.

Courses are offered in the following areas: cross-cultural issues in deafness, disturbances in communication, community service programs for deaf persons, and fieldwork.

Total tuition for 12 credits is $1,656. Assistance for housing and travel arrangements will be provided.
